David Wood – Summary Biography

Dr. David Wood has more than 30 years of international oil and gas experience spanning technical and commercial exploration and production operations, contract evaluation and senior corporate management.

His industry experience includes working with major and independent oil and gas operators in most continents, including long-term postings in the Middle East and South America. This has provided him with a broad insight to commercial and technical issues along international oil, gas and energy supply chains.

David now works as an independent international consultant and expert witness. He has published an extensive body of work on diverse energy related topics including: performance modelling of fiscal terms, economic analysis, enterprise risk & portfolio simulation, LNG, GTL and gas supply, deepwater exploration and production techniques, corporate performance, portfolio and strategy management, mergers & acquisitions, and negotiations & project management. He is actively involved in diverse energy project evaluation consulting, professional training, research and development programmes.
